

IDEAL AREAS OF ABUNDANCE AND PROSPERITY

People often think that if they just had more money they'd be happy, but all the money in the world won't bring happiness or prosperity if people remain unfulfilled in areas that are important to them. Having a vision when you have no hope of achieving it can be very painful and discouraging. Some people learn not to have visions or to shut off their awareness of their visions. They can become so good at not noticing what they really want that they never develop the skill of tuning into their visions or creating plans to carry them out.

The list below may include areas important to you but in which you're having a less-than-fulfilling experience. If you can think of other areas in which you would love abundance, add them to this list. You might look at these and ask yourself if you have all that you want in the ones that are important to you. Ask yourself what your ideal experience of abundance would be in each of those categories. Ask yourself if you're willing to remain unfulfilled in these areas.

- | | | | |
|--------------------|-------------------|-------------------|-------------------------|
| art as creator | art as observer | beauty | clothes |
| enough space | entertainment | excitement | family |
| financial security | friendship | ideal environment | ideal home |
| intimacy | joy | laughter | love |
| money | physical security | prudent reserve | purpose |
| recreation | relaxation | rest | retirement |
| savings | service | sex | sharing with loved ones |
| silence | sleep | spirituality | vacation |
| vehicle | work | | |

Others you can think of:

_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____